

Pale points show original observations; dark points and lines show population-level model predictions with 95% confidence intervals.